FOX NEWS' BRIT HUME DOESN'T MENTION 17 U.S. SOLDIERS KILLED IN IRAQ

FOX NEWS' BRIT HUME is all so eager to point out how violence is down in Anbar Province in Iraq that he couldn't bring himself on the Monday FOX NEWS SPECIAL REPORT show to make a mention that 17 U.S. soldiers have been KILLED in Iraq in the first half of June.

Hume also failed to tell his audience the reason the violence is down in Anbar Province has NOTHING to do with the U.S. military. What it has to do with is the tribal leaders inside of Anbar Province got together and tossed Al Qaeda out of the province.

Hume made it seem like the United States military had swept through Anbar Province ridding the province of all terrorists which is totally false.

Hume, who NEVER served a day of his life in the United States military, also failed to mention U.S. troops have pulled back from Anbar Province because the tribal leaders have taken over security of Anbar Province.

The saddest part of this kind of shoddy reporting is there are thousands of FOX NEWS viewers who also have never spent one day in the uniform of any branch of the United States military and they don't know how military operations are conducted.

While BRIT HUME was boasting about how American deaths were down in Anbar Province, the following list provides details of American deaths in Iraq for the first half of June.

Apparently to BRIT HUME and FOX NEWS their deaths mean absolutely nothing and are not worth mentioning on FOX NEWS.

COMMENTARY BY BILL CORCORAN, EDITOR OF CORKSPHERE, and former Cpl. (E-4), United States Army Combat Engineers.

Click on names of each American killed in Iraq for further details which BRIT HUME and FOX NEWS feels is not important enough to mention.
