'Outsourcing can bring India, US closer':

[World News] New York, Sep 21 : The Bush administration has acknowledged that outsourcing is a positive link between India and the US with the potential to bring both countries closer, Indian Foreign Secretary Shyam Saran said here Tuesday.

Saran was speaking after a breakfast meeting between US President George W. Bush and Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh. Both are in the city to address the 59th annual UN General Assembly session.

Saran said the US was also taking cognisance of the fact that India is "becoming a nursery of high-technology".

Emphasising that outsourcing was not all that India was about, he said the country was moving from lower-end functions to higher-end businesses like research and development for new technologies.

The US is recognising the fact that India is "coming of age" in terms of technology development, the foreign secretary said.
